NEW HOMES DEAL SEALED

Council reaches agreement with developer over the first stage of Tottenham Hale regeneration

HUNDREDS of new homes are to be built as part of a major regeneration scheme for Tottenham Hale after the council sealed a deal with a development partner.

Up to 900 homes are planned with a mix of accommodation for sale, rent and shared-ownership, together with new shops, cafes and restaurants and community facilities.

Tottenham Hale is the largest of London's 30 Housing Zone areas earmarked by the Mayor of London – and the latest deal struck will deliver the first phase of the area's regeneration with the first homes scheduled for 2020.

It will pave the way for other regeneration projects close by including the £32million building of a new rail and Underground station at Tottenham Hale with links to the Victoria line, the National Rail network and potentially Crossrail 2.

The wider redevelopment of Tottenham Hale will also see a new district health centre, an employment and skills programme for local people, improved green spaces and better access to the nearby Lee Valley Regional Park.

Haringey Council signed the Strategic Development Partnership – a formal framework for the first phase – with developer Argent Related, who worked on the regeneration of the Kings Cross area as well as central Manchester and central Birmingham.

Council leader Claire Kober said: "This is a significant milestone in our ambitious plans for Tottenham Hale. We look forward to working with Argent Related to deliver hundreds of new homes, jobs and opportunities for Haringey residents."

Robert Evans, from Argent, said: "This partnership has come about because both Argent Related and Haringey are firmly committed to making Tottenham Hale a better place to live, work and spend time in. We look forward to progressing our plans and to presenting them to the Tottenham community."

Blast man dies

THE man severely burned in an explosion as bailiffs and police attended his home in connection with a housing dispute has died.

Wilton Stirling, 56, died at the specialist burns unit he had been transferred to following the incident at the three-storey terraced house where he lived in Stapleton Hall Road, Stroud Green.

Police had been called following reports of a man armed with a weapon.

Five police officers were also injured in the incident receiving burns with one suffering a broken wrist.

They were treated in hospital and have been released.

A post-mortem examination on Mr Stirling has been scheduled and the coroner has been notified.

Detectives are investigating the incident. As a routine procedure it has been referred to the Metropolitan Police's Directorate of Professional Standards and the Independent Police Complaints Commission has been informed.

Housing help for refugees

A SCHEME has been launched to provide homes for Syrian refugees in Haringey by striking a mutually beneficial deal with private landlords.

Housing association Arhag, which provides homes for refugee and migrants, is working with Muswell Hill Methodist Church to find landlords willing to let properties at affordable rents.

In return, Arhag will bring sub-standard properties up to scratch, put in furnishings and appliances, ensure upkeep and guarantee rent is paid on time for a lease's three to five years' duration.

The accommodation is being sought for some of the first Syrian families housed under the government's Community Sponsorship Scheme.

Arhag chief executive Cedric Boston believed it was "an attractive deal for a landlord to have his property improved, maintained and a guaranteed income for up to five years".

"What we would ask for is a realistic rental price, which reflects the guarantee and the maintenance," he said.

Paul Eedle, of Muswell Hill Methodist Church, added: "This is an opportunity for landlords to do good and get a better deal. We have our own homelessness crisis, but the Syrian crisis is so big that we want to help at least a few families."

Landlords who believe they can help should contact Cedric Boston at Arhag on 020 7424 7371 or at cboston@arhag.co.uk, or Muswell Hill Methodist Church on pauleedle@me.com

Stay away from retail park, pupils are told after spate of attacks

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

A SCHOOL'S students have been banned from visiting a popular retail park after three of them were injured following a spate of violent muggings and attacks by groups of older youths.

Youngsters at St Ignatius College, in Turkey Street, Enfield, have been prohibited from going to Enfield Retail Park on the A10 Great Cambridge Road after school following a string of street robberies and anti-social behaviour involving pupils gathering in the vicinity of McDonald's restaurant.

There is no suggestion that any of the pupils at St Ignatius have been involved in the criminal activity, which is believed to involve younger pupils being threatened, bullied and robbed of mobile phones and valuables by older and bigger boys.

The assistant headteacher of St Ignatius College has written to parents explaining the reasons for the restriction and the need to protect the safety of students.

She writes: "There has been a spate of robberies and attacks near McDonald's and other shops and outlets in

Out of bounds: Enfield Retail Park on the A10 Great Cambridge Road

Enfield Retail Park and three of our students were injured there recently.

"There have also been complaints from some Enfield schools are congregating there after school and becoming involved in anti-social behaviour.

"In order to protect our students and ensure their safety, we have made the decision to prohibit our students from visiting the retail park after school.

She adds: "Please can I ask for your support in reinforcing this instruction with your child."

Enfield police are aware of several incidents in which young people have been approached by groups of older youths demanding property, according to a post on the Spotted Enfield Facebook page. They say arrests have been made in relation to some of the thefts and urge students to continue reporting incidents.

They recommend parents advise their children not to take expensive items of property such as iPhones, tablet devices or large sums of cash with them when out on their own.

They add: "If they must take a phone with them for ease of contact, please do advise them not to show it off in public as it may seem very appealing to thieves.

"Please also advise them to travel in groups for safety and remain in lit, well-populated areas during darkness."

Third person on murder charge

THREE people have now been charged with the murder of a man who was stabbed to death in an Enfield street.

Andre Joseph, 24, of no fixed abode, was the latest to be accused of the murder of 42-year-old Damien McLaughlin, who was found with a fatal stab wound in Exeter Road, Brimsdown, at 1.31pm on Saturday, April 22.

Joseph was remanded to appear at the Old Bailey when he appeared at Highbury Corner Magistrates' Court on Friday charged with murder and possession of an offensive weapon.

Two others have already been remanded to appear at the same court in connection with the murder.

A 17-year-old from Tottenham is accused of murder, possession of an offensive weapon and possession of a class B drug (cannabis) and Omar Warner, 18, of Marshside Close, Edmonton, is charged with murder and possession of an offensive weapon.

Missing woman home

A VULNERABLE Enfield woman, reported missing for two days after she was left behind on an Underground station platform as a Tube train pulled away with her family aboard, has been found safe and well.

Police had appealed for help to locate Thi Kim Thu Nygven, 53, who needs twice daily insulin injections for diabetes and has difficulty communicating. She became separated from her family at Bank Tube station after failing to board a Central line train on Friday lunchtime. She was found on Sunday.

Police said that she returned to her home address.

Making an exhibition of themselves

Young at art: Maggie Yu, Emilia Dworak and Nehir Tikici with the project they worked on

THE diverse culture of Edmonton's residents has been represented in an art exhibition by 300 primary school pupils.

Celebrating Diverse Edmonton is showcasing a range of artwork to portray the area in a positive light at a month-long exhibition at Ridge Avenue Library, in Winchmore Hill, until Friday, May 19.

Wilbury Primary, in Wilbury Way, was one of 11 Edmonton schools which took part in workshops across six-week sessions.

Katie Baldwin, year 5 teacher at Wilbury Primary, said the project was a "nice opportunity" for pupils to explore art as many hadn't visited galleries.

"They were very creative and enjoyed working around the theme of Edmonton's diverse community and what they considered important in the area," she said.

A total of 15 students from years 4 and 6 took part in the workshops, which were run by charity Art Start.

Their artwork created from different materials included 3D sculptures representing a range of nationalities.

"We wanted to counter the bad image often associated with the area," said Kika Charalambous, project manager at Edmonton Community Partnership, who organised the initiative.

"Children were really keen to share what they loved about Edmonton and were able to express this through their artwork."

The exhibition was unveiled to guests including parents and teachers last Thursday and was officially opened by Enfield artist A.J. Tracy, who is known for creating artwork from materials he finds on the street.

School fundraisers set for South America adventure

By Clare Casey

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

A GROUP of Enfield students are going to one of the most beautiful places in the world to help put the finishing touches to a school they have funded.

Seven pupils from Winchmore School, in Laburnum Grove, have banked almost £5,000 each through a series of fundraising events and donations from their community to pay for flights and a new school in Ecuador.

The lucky pupils, aged between 15 and 18, will spend a month working with remote communities, teaching an English class.

The final week will be spent in the Galapagos Islands, a double world heritage site (both land and sea are protected) that inspired Charles Darwin's Theory of Evolution.

The youngest member Theo Sergiou said: "We started talking about what we could do to put back into society."

"There was an earthquake in

Trip of a lifetime: Georgina Hoy, Theo Sergiou and Yulet Gjurgji are three of seven Winchmore School students who have raised funds to help build a school in Ecuador Quito, Ecuador's capital, in 2014 and that destroyed lots of buildings and homes.

"We've been funding a new school out there, so when we go it will be in the final stages and we will be the first people to teach a lesson there."

Theo has had to raise twice as much as the others – which he has managed – because he needs to take a carer with him.

He had retinoblastoma when he was younger – a rare form of cancer, almost exclusively found in young children. He is blind in his left eye and can barely see out of his right.

He said: "I've washed cars for money, given talks, been networking with community businesses, had cake sales, just about everything I'm so lucky to be going.. It really is going to be the trip of a lifetime."

"I go for regular doctor's checks on my eyes, but I try not to worry and just enjoy life."

The group, who are making the trip with Camp International, are trying to have "one last funding push" and want people to buy tickets for a dinner and bingo evening on Friday, May 12, at the Cypriot Community Centre, in Earls Grove, Wood Green. To find out more, contact the school at office@winchmore.enfield.sch.uk

Wendy Winter, economic, well-being co-ordinator at Winchmore School, said she was "really proud of them".

A bigger canvas for talented young artists

BUDDING artists from Enfield primary schools will have their work displayed on a huge hoarding outside Chase Farm Hospital's redevelopment after being shortlisted in a competition.

A total of 12 schools entered their artwork from year five and six, based on a festival theme, for the Mayor of Enfield Award for Visual Arts, which will be showcased at an exhibition until May.

The project was run by Enfield Council in partnership with Barnet and Southgate College, who provided art and design training to primary school teachers in Enfield.

Winners of the competition were announced by Upper Edmonton ward councillor Patricia Ekechi at the college's campus in High Street, Southgate, where the exhibition will be open to the public until Friday (May 5).

The shortlisted artwork and winners of the competition will have their work unveiled on the boards outside Chase Farm, in The Ridgeway, next month, courtesy of Vinci Construction, while work gets under way on the redevelopment.

"We have been delighted with the success of the Mayor's Award for Visual Arts this year," said Gwyneth Hamand, the council's learning consultant for enrichment and progression.

"Barnet and Southgate College have done a great job running the training for teachers and supporting the competition."

Alyson Cook, creative arts curriculum manager from Barnet and Southgate College, said the standard of entries had been "truly outstanding" and she had been "really impressed" with the use of techniques and colours.

Winners: Primary school pupils Charlie Copsey, Zoe Leahy, Vedia Cakmakyurdu and Finn Brant Bowes, with councillor Patricia Ekechi

Attention: DENTURE WEARERS

If you are a denture wearer then this article may be of some interest to you!
If you can relate to any of the following questions then it is a sign your denture needs attention:

DO YOU FIND YOUR DENTURES:

- Do not fit as well on your gums as they used to?
- Are they loose?
- Do not cut food as well as they used to?
- Do they make your face look older?
- Have discoloured despite meticulous cleaning or
- Cause discomfort/pain on chewing?

If any of the above breeds familiar territory then I may be able to alleviate some of these problems for you.

My name is Caroline Persaud I am a qualified CLINICAL DENTAL TECHNICIAN. Many of you may be aware of Dental Technicians/Mechanics who repair and produce dentures for dentists, however, due to recent changes in the Dental law, a group of Dental Care Professionals known as Clinical Dental Technicians have been approved by the General Dental Council and can now see denture wearers who have no natural teeth remaining, directly without having to visit a dentist.

The advantages to you, the patients, are numerous. You can be treated by a professional who has been clinically trained to undertake the impressions of your mouth and who also has the technical skill to manufacture your denture to meet your requirements.

A more direct, rapid and personalised service, that can be delivered to you in the comfort of your own home or at my day clinic in Edmonton.

If you wish to discuss any denture related issues please do not hesitate to contact me on:

Star Wars quality: One of the youngsters in a stormtrooper outfit

May the 1st be with you

By Priya Kingsley-Adam

YOUNGSTERS danced merrily around the maypole as they celebrated Southgate's 39th annual May Day Fair on Monday.

Hundreds of festival-goers cheered as this year's chosen May Queen – nine-year-old Lucy Tobin, from Bounds Green – was crowned by Deputy Lieutenant for Enfield Ann Cable.

About £4,000 was raised by Christ Church Southgate, who organised the event in The Green, and the money will be donated to its chosen beneficiary charity, Haven House Children's Hospice, which is based in Woodford Green.

Events included jousting, the popular fair games throw-a-hoop and hook-a-duck, as well as a bucking bronco which involved riders trying to stay mounted as they were thrown around by mechanical bull.

Highlands and Southgate air cadets performed a drill and helped to serve on the stalls with parents from Walker Primary school, in Waterfall Road, Southgate.

"It's a really important day for the community to come together," said Phillip Dawson, warden at Christ Church, who helped to organise the event.

Traditional music included a performance by British Isles and Beyond, who played Northern Frisk, during the May Queen's crowning ceremony.

"We are an inclusive church, so everyone was welcome and it's a nice time for residents to meet at the event before they go off on their summer holidays," added Mr Dawson.

Japanese seat unveiled in tribute to gardens founder

By Priya Kingsley-Adam

priya.kingsley-adam
@nlhnews.co.uk

THE former husband of the Duchess of Cornwall unveiled a special garden seat in honour of his famous Victorian ancestor in Enfield last weekend.

Retired British Army officer Brigadier Andrew Parker Bowles, the great-great-nephew of acclaimed British gardener and botanist Edward Augustus Bowles, returned to Myddelton House Gardens, in Bulls Cross, where his ancestor had lived from 1865 to 1954 in the Georgian mansion he inherited.

Having established the beautiful English gardens there, he never achieved his dream of creating a Japanese-themed garden – but that was put right when the seat was unveiled in E.A. Bowles's memory.

The seat, known as a Torii, has been crafted from Iroko wood with a red cedar, oriental-style roof and is positioned overlooking the rock garden, which was E. A. Bowles's favourite spot and is where his ashes were scattered.

Mr Parker Bowles, who is president of the E.A. Bowles of Sitting pretty: Jackie Kingdom, chairwoman of the E.A. Bowles of Myddelton House Society, Brigadier Andrew Parker Bowles, head gardener James Hall and gardener Bryan Hewitt

Myddelton House Society, unveiled the seat on Saturday.

"It is a great honour to be able to try out this lovely new, Japanese-style seat, which I am sure my ancestor E.A. Bowles would have loved as he was enthusiastic about all things Japanese," he said.

"He had great hopes of introducing a Japanese theme into the gardens, but sadly it never happened. So now I can proudly say that his wish has come true."

Also attending the ceremony were seven garden volunteers who were presented with long-service medals and certificates by Paul Osborn, chairman of the Lee Valley Regional Park Authority, which runs Myddelton House along with the society, which is celebrating its 25th anniversary.

Youth hurt in stabbing

THE stabbing of an 18-year-old in an Edmonton street is being linked to a violent brawl between up to seven men armed with baseball bats in the same road seven hours later.

Police are appealing for witnesses and information following the attacks in Charlton Road last Wednesday.

The stabbing victim attended a north London hospital at 1pm that day with a wound to his leg.

Seven hours later police received reports of a street fight involving up to seven men wielding baseball bats in Charlton Road. The men, aged between 20 and 25, fled from the scene.

A 22-year-old man who was arrested on suspicion of affray has been released while inquiries continue.

Although none of the men stayed at the scene for treatment, police believe they would have sustained injuries.

Anyone with information concerning either incident is being asked to call Enfield CID on 020 8345 3315 or Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111. They can also tweet @MetCC.

Trapped: Firefighters work to remove the woman from the vehicle following the accident in Fore Street, Edmonton (Photo: London Fire Brigade)

Firefighters cut woman from car

A WOMAN trapped in a car had to be released by firefighters using specialist cutting equipment after two cars collided in Edmonton.

She was taken to hospital by ambulance following the smash in Fore Street, just after 3.30pm on Monday last week. Two adults and two children from the other vehicle got out before the fire brigade arrived.

Paramedics confirmed that a man, a woman and a boy were treated at the scene.

A spokeswoman for the London Fire Brigade said: "We were called at 15.41 and it was over for us at 16.48.

"Fire crews from Tottenham, Walthamstow and Islington fire stations attended the incident."

Five contenders bid to replace outgoing Ozzie

By Clare Casey

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

FIVE contenders have thrown their hat into the ring to be the new councillor for Enfield Lock.

The resignation of Labour's Ozzie Uzoanya prompted a flurry of activity, within five parties nominating candidates.

Christine Bellas is standing for the Tories; Elif Erbil for Labour; Kate McGeevor for the Green Party; Richard Morgan-Ash for the Liberal Democrats and Gary Robbins for UKIP.

Enfield Lock residents will have the chance to vote at the by-election on Thursday, May 18, when polling stations will be open from 7am to 10pm.

Mr Uzoanya quit as one of the three ward councillors at the end of March.

"It is with deep regret that due to family reasons I will be resigning from my position as a councillor for Enfield Lock," he said at the time.

"In the six years I have served on the council I have taken great pride in seeing a Labour administration work tremendously hard for all residents across the borough.

"I would like to thank council staff and partners for its ongoing efforts to improve Enfield as a whole. I would also like to thank the people of Enfield Lock who put their faith in electing me twice to serve – it's been a privilege and an honour to serve you."

There are 63 members of Enfield Council – 41 Labour and 22 Conservative – and the last borough election was held in 2014.

Resigned: Ozzie Uzoanya

Cottages damaged in Broomfield Park blaze

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

PLANS to restore a park's historic mansion to its former glory have suffered another blow after a suspected arson attack badly damaged derelict outbuildings at the weekend.

The interior and roof of three cottages which form part of the stableyard block connected to grade two-listed Broomfield House, in Broomfield Park, Palmers Green, were gutted by the blaze on Sunday night.

The mansion house, which was built in the 16th century, has remained derelict and surrounded by scaffolding for the past 20 years after it was badly damaged by two fires in 1984 and 1994.

Although the cottages only date back to the 19th century, their exterior wall, which runs along Broomfield Lane, was built in 1690 when wealthy City merchant Richard Spencer occupied the mansion.

"The stableyard buildings are included in any future restoration," said Colin Younger, chairman of the Broomfield House Trust, which has been seeking with Enfield Council to obtain grant funding to bring the house back to its original condition.

"The damage to the cottages is a setback, but it is not irreparable and won't have dire implications for the restoration project."

Mr Younger said that the council had been exploring applying for an Enterprise grant after its application for a £4million Heritage grant was turned down in 2015.

It is looking for a commercial partner to operate a cafe in the house. It also

Burnt out: Cottages which form part of the stableyard block connected to Broomfield House, in Palmers Green wants to convert the stables which could be leased as commercially managed artists' studios.

Mr Younger said he believed the fire had been started deliberately by intruders because there was no power to the buildings, which could have caused it to start accidentally.

He said there had been a spate of vandalism in the stableyard in the weeks before and although there were security cameras, the back entrance of the stableyard wasn't covered by CCTV.

He discounted the possibility that the fire might have been associated with increased visitors to the park because of a travelling fair held there over the bank holiday weekend.

FAMILY ANNOUNCEMENTS

Schoolgirl Chardonnae on course for place at Harvard

By Priya Kingsley-Adam

priya.kingsley-adam@nlhnews.co.uk

A SIXTH-FORM student from Enfield will be jetting off to live in America after securing a place to study at one of the world's most prestigious universities.

A-level pupil Chardonnae Deslandes, from Kingsmead, in Southbury Road, will begin a four-year course in August at Harvard University in Massachusetts.

Harvard is world-renowned and is the oldest institution of higher education in the United States. Past graduates include American president John F Kennedy who was assassinated in 1963.

Chardonnae applied to study at seven American universities and when the 18-year-old received her acceptance letter she was overwhelmed with joy.

"I was on the phone to a friend when I found out I got into Harvard and I just started crying," she said. "I was really shocked."

Chardonnae, who lives in Alberta Road, Bush Hill Park, had always set her sights on studying abroad and will begin her first year as a fresher student, majoring in government and minoring in social anthropology.

She said her decision to study at Harvard was swayed by its liberal arts programme which involves social and natural sciences, as well as humanities.

"I'm looking forward to exploring subjects outside my main field of study," she said.

She added that her friends had been a "beacon" of support throughout the application process and were thrilled with her achievement.

"My best friend is already planning her first visit to come and see me," she said.

Among the homely possessions packed in Chardonnae's suitcase will be a supply of tea bags.

She visited the university last week for three days to explore the campus and to meet the new students starting in August.

On her way to university in America: Eighteen-year-old Chardonnae Deslandes

"Everyone was so friendly and Americans are really easy to talk to," she said.

While on campus she had the chance to attend a political debate between student Republican and Democratic supporters.

After graduating she plans on studying a masters degree in England and is hoping to pursue a career with the United Nations or a governmental organisation.

"If you believe in yourself and you strive for something that really matters, then it really is achievable," she added.

Man found hanging

A MAN discovered hanging in a car park in Edmonton remains in "a serious condition" in hospital.

Police say the man was found in the car park at Edmonton Green Shopping Centre in Fore Street at about 2.50pm on Tuesday last week.

He was cut down and taken to an east London hospital where he remains in a serious condition.

Police are continuing with their inquiries and say the incident is not being treated as suspicious at this stage.

Why being active is right way to go

By Priya Kingsley-Adam

priya.kingsley-adam@nlhnews.co.uk

THE health benefits of cycling and walking in significantly reducing heart disease and cancer – published in a study – has been welcomed by Enfield Council's cabinet members.

According to the findings in the British Medical Journal by the University of Glasgow, adults who cycle to work are 45 per cent less likely to develop heart disease and cancer.

The study also shows that commuters who walk to work – up to six miles a week – are 27 per cent less likely to develop heart disease than those who drive or use public transport.

Krystle Fonyonga, cabinet member for community safety and public health, said the study highlighted the need for residents to take exercise seriously.

"This evidence demonstrates that the council's efforts to get people more active through our Move More campaign is the right way to improve the health of residents," she said. "This research shows that Enfield is more than playing its part in helping people to live long and healthy lives."

Daniel Anderson, cabinet member for environment, added that the study supported efforts to promote exercise through cycling schemes.

"This research shows that the council is vindicated in its pioneering efforts to transform our high streets and town centres, promote more active forms of travel and create safe and secure cycle lanes," he said.

All change at the top as Tories ditch group leader

By Clare Casey

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

ENFIELD'S Tory leader Terry Neville has been ousted.

The long-standing politician – who threw a party in December to celebrate 30 years as a Conservative councillor – has been replaced by Joanne Laban.

The majority of members voted for her at the Enfield Council Tory group's annual meeting last week.

Ms Laban, who was elected deputy leader in 2012, said: "I'm delighted. It's monumental to be the group's first woman leader and I'll be campaigning to get the Conservatives back into power in Enfield next year and to get more Conservative councillors."

Mr Neville, 71, a lawyer and magistrate, said: "There comes a time when there is seen to be a need for change.

Taking over: Joanne Laban has replaced Terry Neville

"My main focus now is that we, the Conservatives, do well in the elections and we stand every chance.

"As far as Joanne goes, she's an ambitious young lady and I give her credit for that and wish her all the best."

Mr Neville, who is a councillor for Grange ward, was behind the smoking ban in the council's committee rooms and chamber and introduced wheelie bins, new street lighting and park police. In his early career as a solicitor, he brought about a legislation to regulate the number of sex shops in Soho.

Southgate ward councillor Edward Smith, the shadow cabinet member for housing, is the Tory group's new deputy leader.

Teenagers turn decorators

ARMED with paint-splattered overalls and a roller in his hand, trainee construction worker Kysian-Kumar Lloyd has helped transform Edmonton Leisure Centre.

Along with nine others – aged 16 to 19 – he took part in the Volunteer It Yourself (VIY) scheme, aimed at enabling young people out of work or in training to learn a vocational trade and building skills.

They spent two days painting and decorating the soft play area, adjoining toilets and washrooms.

Kysian, who is studying construction at the College of Haringey, Enfield and North East London, said: "We've learnt new things by being on a proper job with different mentors compared to how we work and learn in college.

"It's great to know you're making a real difference in your community at the same time as working to a professional standard."

A VIY spokesman said the experience was invaluable because the majority of participants not only gained valuable work experience but also worked towards achieving a City and Guilds accreditation.

Work was completed on time and within budget. Participants were given free annual membership to the leisure centre as a reward.

Tim Mills, business development director at Fusion Lifestyle, a charity that runs leisure centres in the borough, including Edmonton, said: "This is our second partnership with VIY and we're delighted to be working together to deliver real benefits to the young people in the communities we serve."

What's on and what's coming

A DASH of entertainment

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

A SWING extravaganza featuring songs made famous by some of the legends of the musical genre is performed at Enfield's Dugdale Centre throughout next week.

The spectacular show is the latest from Enfield-based DASH Productions and has an unusual twist.

All the swing greats are featured – from Glenn Miller, Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin and Ella Fitzgerald, to Michael Buble.

But there are also swing versions of hits from contemporary rock and pop artists, among them Wonderwall, by Oasis, and a track by Lady Ga Ga.

"We even do a swing version of a rap song and it works surprising well," said David Short, who founded the troupe 15 years ago.

The 47-year-old is a furniture salesman at the Fishpools store in Waltham Cross during the day, but he spends evenings and weekends rehearsing together with the talented cast of performers he has assembled.

It's a real family affair with his wife Joanne, daughter Sophie, 22, and 19-year-old son, Kieran all involved in the current or past productions staged over the past five years at the Dugdale.

"Most of the cast are from Enfield and are friends I've met over the years in am-

It don't mean a thing if it ain't got that swing: The troupe in action dram or musical theatre we have appeared in, or else they are former pupils I used to teach at a performing arts academy where I also studied," explained David, who lives in Bush Hill Park.

The 14-strong cast, all trained to industry standard, are aged from 19 to 55 and include hairdressers, shop workers and teachers. DASH – so called after it was suggested combining the first two letters of David's first and second names – is staging its 11th show at the Dugdale in five years with DASH Goes Swing.

The show runs from Monday to Saturday, excluding Thursday, and the venue and the stage will be appropriately decorated to give the audience the impression they are in an intimate nightclub with some seated on the stage.

"Over the years we have gained a loyal following of fans and the shows have been sell-outs, so we are extending the number of seats to cope with demand for this show," added David.

"It's a mixture of greats songs, dancing and laughs and what I can guarantee is that the audience will arrive with butterflies in their stomachs and leave with a smile on their faces, feeling like they have been brilliantly entertained."

Chickenshed's timely message on the need for tolerance

Review: Refugee Boy, Chickenshed Theatre, April 27

IN these times of Brexit, Syria, Donald Trump and border walls, Chickenshed delivered a timely and poignant message of hope and tolerance.

Based on Benjamin Zephaniah's eponymous novel, the action centred on Alem, a teenager displaced by the Ethiopian/Eritrean war of the late 1990s.

We follow his trials and tribulations as he struggles to find his way in the strange and sometimes hostile land that is the United Kingdom, all the while awaiting letters from his father.

This production must be viewed as a companion piece to last year's superb Kindertransport, which marked the arrival of artistic director Lou Stein. Direction in this case was deftly handled by Jelena Budimir, who assembled a fine cast of talented young actors.

Soma Taylor-Patel delivered an assured performance as Alem, trapped between two worlds and unable to control his destiny as he is caught up in a merry-go-round of bureaucracy.

Taylor-Patel was ably supported by Kyle Johnson as his best friend Mustapha, whom he meets while staying in a children's home.

Meanwhile, the electrifying performance of Will Laurence, who switched effortlessly between several different characters, each seemingly more menacing than the last, threatened to steal every scene he was in.

Laurence surely has a big future as an actor if he wants it.

Some of the most affecting scenes were those featuring Alem and his father, sensitively portrayed by Anthony Nyagah, as the youngster learns of the tragic death of his mother.

Special mention must also go to Simon Spencer as Kevin, whose boundless enthusiasm grabbed one's attention throughout.

As the play drew to its conclusion and Alem contemplates his destiny while looking to the stars, it is obvious that he has been irrevocably transformed by the tumultuous events of his topsy-turvy life.

There are no easy solutions for him – only an uncertain future. It only takes a cursory glance at the news to underline how relevant his story is today.

MINDHORN (15, 89 mins)

SEEING the truth is easy when you have robotic vision in director Sean Foley's loopy lark based around a fictitious 1980s' TV detective show – catchphrase: "It's truth time!" – best described as The Six Million Dollar Man meets Bergerac on the Isle of Man.

Scripted by actors Julian Barratt and Simon Farnaby, who nab two of the showiest roles, Mindhorn hits more targets than it misses with its delightfully daft cocktail of spoof, slapstick and whodunnit.

The search for a hospital outpatient, who is suspected of murder, quickly takes a back seat to the pratfalls including flashes of old-fashioned physical humour like the lead actor chasing after a suspect and awkwardly clambering over a garden gate as it swings open beneath him.

Extended cameos from Kenneth Branagh and Simon Callow, gleefully poking fun at their theatrical luvviness, deliver hearty laughs as the titular sleuth goes to squirm-inducing lengths to regain his poster boy status, albeit with a pot belly and a hairline that has receded down his back.

In the late 1980s, actor Richard Thorncroft (Barratt) set a nation's heart aflutter as Mindhorn, who could literally "see the truth" using his one robotic eye.

Twenty-five years later, fame has cruelly deserted him.

Catch a fallen star

Richard is overweight, gloriously self-deluded and has to beg his long-suffering agent (Harriet Walter) for unedifying work.

Out of the blue, she offers him a chance at redemption – return to the Isle of Man, where the TV series was filmed, to assist Chief Inspector Derek Newsome (David Schofield) in apprehending suspected serial killer Paul Melly (Russell Tovey).

Melly is a deluded fan of the TV series and tells police he will "only speak to Inspector Mindhorn or more people are going to die!"

Consequently, Richard travels to his former stomping ground to work closely alongside DC Baines (Andrea Riseborough) on the high-profile case.

"Stay in character at all times," she reminds Richard.

"When I go in, I go deep," he counters saucily.

Employing every acting muscle, Richard revives his alter ego, while stoking the embers of romance with former co-star Patricia Deville (Essie Davis), trading barbs with former series stuntman Clive Parnevik (Farnaby) and coveting the outrageous good fortune of former Mindhorn sidekick Peter Eastman (Steve Coogan).

Filmed on location on the Isle of Man, Mindhorn is a pottymouthered escape from dreary reality that pickpockets chuckles and the occasional snort of derision as the cast surrender to the script's lunacy.

Barratt (of Mighty Boosh fame and husband of Night Night's Julia Davis) is clearly having a ball as a fallen star, who couldn't care less about the death of an innocent girl until he has his morning Americano with hot milk.

Farnaby is equally goofy and their script contrives a ramshackle murder mystery that might pass muster on Midsomer Murders, with a considerably higher body count.

Potential Development Sites

North London has seen an increase in values throughout 2016 and into 2017 which has therefore increased the value of potential development land. This could range from land to the rear of your existing property through to a yard or even an outbuilding. The national policy for planning is geared towards delivering more new houses throughout the next decade coupled with an increase in demand and a lack of supply, now is an opportune time to come forward with potential sites.

There are specialist niche developers who can deliver sites which combine several rear gardens (subject to planning) it might be worth considering and discussing whether you and your neighbours would be keen to explore this idea. If so Lanes can facilitate this.

Whilst we believe all development should be considerate to the environment around it and sustainable to the community, we do all have an obligation to provide more housing within our communities and if you are in possession of potential development land you could help shape the future of your neighbourhood, whilst maximising the optimum value of the land.

Lanes specialist Land & New Homes Company can provide up to date market appraisals and advise on all things development from inception to completion.

For an initial, confidential chat please contact Simon Cox at Lanes Land on 01992 526754 or simon.cox@lanesnewhomes.co.uk.

Smart move for city slickers

By Rebecca Chaplin

The Smart ForFour was the first time the brand had enabled owners to take more than two people in one of their cars. Now, for the first time, you will be able to drive one of these four-seaters with an all-electric powertrain, although the two-seater version did get this treatment in previous generations.

It gets the same engine as was unveiled on its little sister, the ForTwo, at the end of last year. With a range of up to 96 miles, it's good, but it's not quite up there with some of its rivals, so does it make up for this deficiency in other areas?

When Smart cars got an updated look, built on the same platform as the quirky, small and versatile Renault Twingo, it was a welcome change from the old design. The brand has taken this opportunity to take some of the features and really exaggerate the unfamiliar elements of this compact car.

Inside is still decidedly practical – as you would want in a city car. Instead of opting for a premium feel with concealed storage options, materials are designed to face a lot of short journeys and the associated stresses of people hopping in and out frequently.

Space in the front is generous and thanks to those standard sized doors, getting in is easy. In the back, the space isn't quite as readily available, but if the driver and front seat passenger can afford to sacrifice some legroom, you may get two adults in the back. That said, with my seat in position, there wasn't a lot of space for rear seat passengers.

In the front there is a small glove-box and a secondary storage box within the centre console, while door pockets are generous. There's further space in the arm rests.

Boot space is really limited – this is not the sort of car designed to take four people away for the weekend. With the engine in the rear the boot floor is high and flat, but realistically you'll only get one suitcase in or a couple of bags.

If you've started out in the ForTwo, as I did, you're going to notice a difference in handling when you take a drive in the ForFour. While the ForTwo feels planted and like it was designed to be what it is, the four-seater feels slightly like the addition of those two extra seats have messed with its equilibrium and made it far less stable on the road.

The electric drive means power is available almost instantly, although you're going to want to try and resist the temptation to plant your foot to the ground.

With only 96 miles of range – at the absolute best – this is not a car for pushing to the limits.

When it comes to price, well, this is where the Smart ForFour and ForTwo Electric Drive come into their own.

Electric mobility can be extremely pricey, but if you can afford the initial outlay, you can hope you make your money back in reduced ownership costs later.

However, compared to rivals, Smart is relatively cheap. At around £19,000 for the ForFour, and only a few hundred pounds less for the ForTwo, these are very affordable compared to rivals.

At the moment, you can charge at home, but it's not particularly quick, taking around six hours to charge to 80 per cent. Later in the year, a fast charger will be available, but cars released before that date won't be compatible.

Those who rarely drive more than 30 miles from their house and stay at city speeds for the majority of the time will be fine, if you need to drive further on weekends you're probably going to need a second car – although Smart suggests this will be the case with most owners.

Dear Susan

We knew you'd like to see this article in The Advertiser about your old school and a reunion they are planning.

Although you're far away did you know you can view the newspaper online via the digital edition at any time of the week?

There are often articles about the very area you grew up in and people you may know.

We can keep sending the paper to you but this seems such a simple and convenient way to stay in touch with all the news from where you grew up.

Love to all, Mum xxx

SPURS STILL IN THE HUNT

By Dominique Stafford

sport.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

MANAGER Mauricio Pochettino is hopeful that Tottenham Hotspur will still be able to pile the pressure on Chelsea in the race for the Premier League title following their 2-0 victory over Arsenal on Sunday.

Second-half goals from Dele Alli and Harry Kane in the last ever north London derby to be played at White Hart Lane not only ensured that Spurs will finish above their bitter rivals for the first time in 22 years but also kept them just four points behind table-topping Chelsea – who enjoyed an equally impressive victory at Everton earlier in the day – with four matches left to play.

Pochettino is well aware that Chelsea remain firm favourites in the battle to be crowned champions, but Tottenham do have the potential advantage of playing first in the next round of matches – meaning that victory at West Ham United on Friday would see them close the gap to one point before Chelsea next take to the field against Middlesbrough on Monday.

And the manager believes that Spurs do still have a chance of catching the leaders as long as they can keep on applying the pressure.

“We are in the race and the gap is still four points,” Pochettino said. “We have to be focused now. We have another big game against West Ham, another difficult derby.

“That could be a chance to put psychological pressure on Chelsea. We play before them and, if we win, we will see what happens when Chelsea play Middlesbrough at Stamford Bridge on Monday.

Piling on the pressure: Mauricio Pochettino believes that Spurs are still in with a chance of the title

“I can understand our fans being excited about finishing above Arsenal, but I don’t feel the same because for me it is about trying to win the title. It’s true that it will be difficult, but we will see what happens.”

Sunday’s win was Spurs’ ninth in a row in the league and Pochettino hailed his players after watching them see off Arsenal with some ease.

“It was a fantastic afternoon,” he added. “I’m so pleased for our players and our fans. It was an afternoon where they deserved to live the last derby at White Hart Lane. It was so emotional for everyone.

“We were always in control, we dominated and created the most important chances. I said at half-time to keep going.

“We changed a little our positions in offensive situations, we tried to find better solutions to create the chances. In the end it was a fantastic performance and we deserved the victory.

“The important thing is every time we play this season, we’re going to enjoy. We enjoy playing football and enjoy playing together. That is a fantastic thing. I’m so proud because I’m here and fighting for this club.”

Tottenham confirm move to Wembley

TOTTENHAM HOTSPUR have confirmed that they will play all their home games at Wembley Stadium next season to enable them to complete work on their new ground.

Spurs are in the process of building a 61,000-seater stadium on land adjacent to their existing home of White Hart Lane and are planning on moving into their new ground in time for the start of the 2018-19 season.

However, they need to demolish their existing stadium in order for the work to be completed and the club have announced that – as expected – they will now play at Wembley for a year to enable this to happen.

The decision means that Spurs have just one game left at their historic home, with Manchester United being the final visitors to White Hart Lane on May 14.

In a statement on the club’s official website, chairman Daniel Levy said: “This marks a momentous day in our club’s history as it is the day we formally agreed the demolition of our beloved White Hart Lane.

“The Lane means a huge amount to each and every one of us and we needed to gain greater certainty on the delivery of the new stadium before we made the final decision to commence with the decommissioning of our iconic, historic home for some 118 years.

“We shall ensure that we give the Lane a fitting farewell when we play our last match here on May 14.

“Both on and off the pitch this is an incredibly exciting time in the history of our club.”

Play-off agony for Borough as they lose nine-goal thriller

HARINGEY BOROUGH’S dreams of securing promotion to the Ryman Premier Division were crushed when they were beaten 5-4 in a thrilling play-off semi-final at Maldon and Tiptree.

Borough – who were only promoted to this level for the first time in 2015 – enjoyed a fantastic campaign in the Ryman League North Division and secured a fifth-placed finish to set up a trip to second-placed Maldon and Tiptree in the play-off semi-finals on Wednesday last week.

The match proved to be high on drama from the start and the hosts took the lead inside six minutes as Sam Newson latched on to the ball and squared to leave Liam Nash with a simple tap-in.

Nash doubled Maldon’s advantage on 12 minutes, making no mistake from the spot after Adam Mills had been brought down in the box, but the visitors hit back almost immediately as Rakim Richards reduced their deficit with a shot from 20 yards out.

But Maldon restored their two-goal lead as Nash completed his hat-trick inside the first 20 minutes with a shot from the edge of the box which keeper Harry Palmer probably should have saved.

The match rather calmed down after this frenetic start and there were no further goals prior to the interval, but Borough began the second half in positive fashion and grabbed their second on 49 minutes when Ralston Gabriel latched on to a ball over the top and finished in style.

However, within two minutes of this Maldon grabbed their fourth as Palmer failed to deal with Nash’s cross and Newson was on hand to turn the ball home from close range.

Again the visitors responded well to this setback and Anthony McDonald had a shot superbly tipped round the post by Maldon keeper Daniel Wilks before Gabriel reduced their deficit by scoring following a corner on 76 minutes.

Borough were unable to get back on level terms though and the hosts once more restored their two-goal lead seven minutes from time – Adam Mills smashing home after being set up by Nash.

Chris Benjamin gave the visitors some hope by scoring during four minutes of injury time, but it was not enough as Maldon managed to hold on for the win.
